Brother Weeps as He Tells Jury of Doctor's Murder

Defense Loses Second Attempt to Bar Evidence From Jury

ACCUSED IS CALM

Sarah Ruth Dean Maintains Cool Interest Through Story

GREENWOOD, Miss.—(P)—Defense attorneys for Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, charged with murder for the alleged poisoning of Dr. John Preston Kennedy, Tuesday were overruled for the second time on motions to prevent the presentation of Kennedy's dying statement to the jury.

Dr. Henry Kennedy, dentist, once again went over his dramatic recital of the death of his brother in a hospital at Jackson, climaxed with his brother's quoted charge that "Ruth Dean gave me a drink of whisky with poison in it," the 12 men in the jury box leaned forward and listened in rapt attention.

Dr. Dean listened with the same air of cool interest she has maintained throughout the trial.

The witness broke down and cried when he told of his brother's prayers that he might live until his divorced wife and daughter, who were in Panama at the time, reached his bedside.

As court recessed for luncheon, defense attorneys said they would cross-examine the witness Tuesday afternoon.

Brother's Story

GREENWOOD, Miss.—(P)—The state late Monday presented to the court where Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, 33-year-old baby specialist, is being tried for murder for the death of Dr. John Preston Kennedy, a reputedly deceased physician in which Dr. Kennedy charged Dr. Dean, his woman clinical associate, with having poisoned him, and then won the right of have the statement given to the jury.

The jury was locked up in its room while the statement was being given to the court through Dr. Henry Kennedy, young dentist brother of John Preston Kennedy. Afterward the defense subjected the witness to stiff cross-examination and then moved to bar the testimony from the trial record. The motion was overruled by presiding Judge S. F. Davis, who ordered the testimony presented to the jurors Tuesday.

Dr. Henry Kennedy testified that his brother told him, another brother, and an attending physician, as he was dying, that Dr. Dean gave him poison in a whisky highball during an after-midnight meeting at Kennedy's clinic.

"She has been worrying me, calling me several times each night," Henry Kennedy quoted his brother as saying before he died in Baptist hospital in Jackson.

Defendant Listens Calmly

Calm as ever, the handsome woman defendant kept her eyes fixed on the witness, who avoided her gaze, throughout the recital. Once a faint smile played about her lips as the witness said they had asked Preston Kennedy "what he wanted done," and quoted him as saying:

"Do what you want but don't do anything that will keep us three from meeting in heaven."

The witness said the dying man's reference to "us three" meant his two brothers and himself.

Henry, slim, tall and dark, very professional in appearance, testified in low voice. Frequently his face was drawn and other members of the Kennedy family in the courtroom wept.

The witness said his brother, who became ill the night of July 27, was removed to the Jackson hospital five days later and died five days after that.

The jury was present when he took the stand, and it was not until he made a reference to "a dying declaration" that defense lawyers objected.

The jury then was retired.

Tells of Repeated Calls
He quoted Dr. Preston Kennedy as saying that Dr. Dean had repeatedly phoned him and that he met her around midnight of July 27 and that they went together to his office.

"She called that night and said she wasn't going to leave town until I came to see her," the witness quoted Preston Kennedy as saying.

He said his brother recounted having several drinks with the woman physician and that before "the last drink" he went out in the hall and came back to find that the drinks had been poisoned.

"Preston said he drank his drink and noticed a strong metallic taste—an astringent taste," the witness testified, asserting that Dr. Kennedy had then hurriedly taken his companion home and afterwards tried to treat himself severely, but without success.

The witness said the dying man's mind was "normal" at the time of his statement and that he had spoken feelingly of his divorced wife and baby daughter.

Henry Kennedy said his brother

Troops Fire on Paris Mob of 3,000

Chamber Suspends as Deputies Stop Premier's Speech

Free-for-All Fight Between Radical and Conservative Members

GOLD TAKES FLIGHT

French Securities Decline as Capital Returns to U. S. A.

PARIS, France.—(P)—Troops were called out late Tuesday to reinforce police in serious rioting which broke out in the Place de la Concorde.

A man was killed and a woman probably fatally shot, and a score were wounded when police fired on a mob of some 3,000 who attempted to break through a police barricade on the bridge which separates the Place de la Concorde from the Chamber of Deputies.

Daladier Wins
PARIS, France.—(P)—Premier Daladier won a fight for his political life Tuesday when the Chamber of Deputies, after a riotous demonstration, gave him a vote of confidence, 300 to 217.

For the first time in the memory of deputies the premier had been interrupted during a declaration of public policy, as angry deputies came to blows.

Fist-Fights in Parliament
PARIS, France.—(P)—Premier Edouard Daladier summoned his radical Socialist party Tuesday to aid him to "prevent civil war" lest "the republic be forced to abdicate."

"The fundamentals of this agitation," declared the premier, "lie in an economic and financial crisis. The incidents we are witnessing threaten to crystallize the people's discontent."

Banking Crisis
He said he had shaken up the government because of the let-down revealed by operations of Serge Slavsky and the resultant collapse of the Bayonne municipal pawnshop (bank).

He made his ministerial declaration in the Chamber of Deputies, from which the cabinet asks a vote of confidence.

A free-for-all fight between Socialists and Communists on the one hand and members of the conservative Right on the other, and cries of "Resign!" interrupted Premier Daladier in the midst of his appeal, and the session of the Chamber of Deputies was suspended.

Gold Takes Flight
The tense situation was reflected in the Bourse Monday where stocks and bonds slumped and the dollar bounded up on a buying wave attributed to nervous traders, afraid of political developments, who were anxious to sell francs.

The French government was faced with a rapidly emptying Treasury despite a recent issue of 3,800,000,000 francs in treasury bonds. Financial quarters urged stabilization negotiations by France, the United States, and Great Britain as a means of protecting French gold.

Only 340,000,000 francs ($2,012,000 at Monday's closing quotation) was reported in Chamber of Deputies lobby to remain in France's cash after payment of a four-month short-term obligation falling due daily. French bonds and stocks dropped sharply.

The world's chief source of asbestos is found in the vicinity of Thetford Mines, Quebec, Canada.

WASHINGTON.—(P)—A full report from the National Recovery Administration (NRA) on the previous connections of its officials, the codes they have handled, and the positions now held by those who have left the NRA, was asked in the senate Tuesday by Senator Nye, North Dakota Republican. Nye has had several disputes with Recovery Administration Johnson to date.

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Chairman George, of the senate elections committee, Tuesday fixed February 14 as the date for a public hearing on petitions filed by citizens seeking to oust Senators Long and Overton.

District Bond Men Likely to Approve

Wasson Gives Additional Refunding Data to St. Louis

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—State Bank Commissioner Wasson communicated Tuesday with Kellon E. White, chairman of the St. Louis group of road district bondholders who were to meet late in the day at St. Louis to decide whether Arkansas' new refunding law is acceptable to them.

At their meeting Monday they were said to be favorable to the plan, but requested certain revenue figures from Wasson before giving their final approval.

Wasson airmailed the information requested, and since word was received that his letter had not arrived at noon it was presumed Wasson's talk with White concerned the data requested by the district bondholders.

Delay Final Approval

LITTLE ROCK.—Representatives of the road improvement district bond group, meeting at St. Louis Monday, deferred unqualified approval of the highway debt refunding bill passed at the recent special session of the legislature, until they obtain certain information to clarify provisions of the bill with respect to anticipated revenues and use of 25 per cent of the highway funds for maintenance.

State Bank Commissioner Marion Wasson, chairman of the subcommittee which negotiated an agreement with bondholders, and P. A. Lasley, legal adviser to the committee, were requested to send to the St. Louis group a statement of estimated revenues for the first year and the amount to be available for various refunding purposes, with an explanation as to whether the percentage for maintenance is to be deducted from gross or net revenues.

Figures Are Furnished
Mr. Lasley obtained the figures from estimates prepared by the state comptroller's office and forwarded them to St. Louis with a letter explaining that the 25 per cent of net revenues is to be set aside for maintenance.

It was said that the St. Louis group approved the plan "in general," but desired additional information before formally recommending that the plan be accepted by bondholders.

Advised that a committee from the Arkansas Bondholders Protective Committee of New York would come here February 12, Governor Frazier said that he would delay signing the bill at least until that time. The governor said he had no information indicating the bondholders would not carry out the agreement to drop the suit against the state, decided by a three-judge federal court, restraining the treasurer from paying out highway funds now on hand.

Representatives of the direct bondholders, meeting in New York last week, decided unanimously to recommend acceptance of the plan incorporated in the bill.

Estimate of Revenues
An estimate of revenues expected during the first year under the new refunding bill, arrived at by comparing rates provided in the bill with actual revenues in 1933, as shown by unaudited records of various departments, places gross revenues from gasoline tax and license fees at $9,447,135.12. Deductions, including cost of collection and the half-cent turnback to counties, would leave $8,570,763.81 for the highway fund, to which would be added $360,000 from toll bridge collections, making net highway revenues $8,931,124.

Charges against that fund, under the new bill, would be as follows:
Maintenance $2,232,781
Toll bridge operation and maintenance 100,000
Transfer to general revenue fund (first year old) 60,000
Transfer to general revenue fund (annually) 4,800
Transfer to auditorial fund (annually) 11,500
Appropriation for refunding expense (1934-35) 50,000

11 Rounded Up in Bremer Kidnaping

But Police Find They Are Only Robber and Bootlegger Suspects

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(P)—Eleven men, arrested at Owatonna, Minn., Monday night as suspects in the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, were absolved of any connection with the abduction by Chief of Police Thomas Dahill after a lengthy grilling.

Five of the band, seized with $4,000 cash and an automatic pistol in their possession at an Owatonna apartment house were brought here by St. Paul police. The other six were to be taken here later in the night, Chief Dahill said, and would be questioned about a recent series of bank robberies and liquor law violations, particularly the $28,584 theft of 5,512 gallons of denatured alcohol from the La Salle Products company here Monday.

Suspect company was aroused by the comings and goings of the men at the apartment house where they had been since January 20. Owatonna authorities said. Bremer was kidnaped January 17. The raid followed with the seizure of the five first and the remaining six later.

Walter Magee, wealthy contractor friend of the missing banker, who received the first ransom note shortly before the victim's bloodstained automobile was found January 17, said again Monday night none of the $200,000 ransom money had been paid.

Senate Proposing 12c Per Pound Tax on Surplus Crop

Agriculture Committee Approves Amendment to Bankhead Bill

9 MILLION DEADLINE

Compulsory Reduction Would Be Obtained by Ruinous Tax

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The senate agriculture committee Tuesday approved an amendment to the Bankhead bill to control cotton production by eliminating its licensing provision and placing a 12-cents-a-pound tax on cotton ginned in 1934 in excess of 9 million bales.

The taxes which the act would impose are to be paid by the purchaser at the time of sale.

The bill provides the Secretary of Agriculture shall apportion the cotton-producing states the number of bales on the average number produced in each state during the last ten years.

300 Millions for Revenue
WASHINGTON.—(P)—The new revenue bill, estimated to yield about 300 million dollars annually, was virtually completed Tuesday by the house ways and means committee; but final action was not expected until later in the week.

Only three items remained to be disposed of at the executive session Wednesday. They are:

1. The proposal for a tax on so-called hot oil, submitted by Secretary Ickes.
2. Continuation of the present first and second class postal rates on inter-city mail.
3. The proposal to make a 5-cents-a-pound levy on coconut and sesame oil apply only on oil going into edible products.

The committee refused to consider Ickes' proposal for an increase from 21 to 42 cents a barrel on oil imports, because this was regarded as a tariff.

W. A. Lewis Files in Sheriff's Race

Well Known Hope Man Declares Himself a Candidate in August

Formal announcement that he would be a candidate for sheriff and collector subject to the action of the Democratic primary election in Hempstead county next August was made Tuesday by W. Aubrey Lewis, of Hope, in The Star's political announcement column.

Mr. Lewis was born and reared in Mine creek township, this county, the son of N. R. Lewis, a pioneer citizen.

In his formal statement he said he had always supported the Democratic party's principles, and twice has been honored with appointments by the governor, serving two terms on the Hempstead county election board; and at present serving citizens of Ward Three as alderman on the Hope city council, on finishing his present term a total service of five years.

Mr. Lewis has been with the Hope Furniture company for 18 years as bookkeeper. He has been active in church and school work in the city and county; and with his business experience feels he is thoroughly qualified for the office of sheriff and collector.

He said in his statement:

"I solicit the earnest consideration of each and every voter in Hempstead county, and ask their support and influence. If elected I shall endeavor to discharge my trust faithfully. I invite the most thorough investigation of my public and private life."

Lobbyists Retire to Lairs... Guffey Pulls a Weir(d) One... Squirrel Food Spoils White House Lawn Beauty... And She Had to Buy Dolly Gann's Book.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—De luxe lobbyists have retired to their lairs.

Too good to last, almost anyone here will tell you. But Roosevelt's expressed disapproval of politico-lobbyists, besides causing resignations from the Democratic national committee, has pushed them off stage.

It's new when Bob Jackson isn't entertaining lavishly at the Mayflower, where Arthur Hays Sulzberger, former F.W.A. headquarters for weeks, and Bruce Kremer isn't showing up at NRA or missing an FACA hearing.

Temporarily, they and other big boys are communicating with federal agencies by letter and telegraph. Necessary visits are made by their clerks.

Lobbyist names, meanwhile, are omitted conspicuously from important invitation lists. But that's probably a passing phase, too.

A Weir(d) Coincidence

Joe Guffey operates an expensive Pennsylvania patronage bureau in a big hotel suite here. He insists he's no lobbyist. But when Ernest Weir, the steel man, defied the National Labor Board, it was Joe who caused his case to be sent to the White House. Weir is a heavy campaign contributor.

Shucks on Beauty!

The White House lawn would be prettier without its mantle of peanut shucks. Those responsible include several dozen squirrels, hundreds of tourists, and Gus Gennrich, presidential bodyguard, who has a weak-kneed squirrel feeding. Several celebrities would like to find a Spanish "count" who came here to take orders for fine wines in case lots. The stuff proved undrinkable.

Jo Davidson gets a daily earful of state secrets. He has the unprecedented privilege of sculpting Roosevelt in his office as he conducts the nation's business. The bust will portray strength and character—as perceived by J. J. Seidman, president of the National Sculpture Society.

Lindbergh always holds the background when photographers catch him in a group. They made another vain effort to get him down in front of the National Advisory Council on Aeronautics meeting.

Trapped by "Politeness"

Women: Mrs. Dolly Gann appeared at a musicale with Mrs. Pat Hurley and Mrs. Charles P. George, daughter of Charlie Curtis. Gann, Hurley and Curtis are all "practicing law" here now. A diplomat's wife gushed over Dolly's recent book.

"How nice!" exclaimed the ex-ecutive lady of the land. "You must bring it and I'll autograph it." So the other woman, who patronizes circulating libraries, had to buy a copy.

Miss Jeanette Rankin, first congresswoman, dramatically refused to vote against war with Germany 18 years ago. Now she's a lobbyist here for the National Council for Prevention of War and a close friend of Chairman Ross Collins of the House military affairs committee.

Mrs. Alvin T. Hirt, C. O. P. national vice chairman, keeps socially active and gives high-grade cocktail parties.

Senator Hattie Caraway cooks her own dinners on the maid's night out.

Beautiful Mrs. Austin H. McCormick, wife of New York's new commissioner of correction, read about his sensational Welfare Island cleanup before leaving the capital to join him.

How often, she exclaimed as she saw newspaper pictures, "have I told that man to stand up straight!"

The League of Republican Women, last gathering featured a Department of Agriculture speaker on "Indoor Plants and Bulbs." And the D. A. R. here, after passing out souvenir card-cases at a bridge party, found the goods inscribed "Made in England."

Disguised Without Cigar

Robert Woolsey, movie comedian appeared in the House restaurant with Congressman Kent Keller of Illinois. No one recognized him, because he hadn't his usual big black cigar. He prefers cigarettes.

Harry Hopkins worried about graft, funds and other CWA problems, has become thin and haggard. But he can still curse with all the gusto of General Johnson himself.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Making Social Contacts Gives Mothers Much Needed Outlet

When a prisoner has long existed in solitary confinement in a dark cell, he can't see when he comes out into the light. If it lasts long enough he may be blind forever. There are many such records in history.

By the same token, a person can develop mental blindness who shuts himself up in the fastness of his own hates, prejudices and obsessions. In time such a person reaches a pathological state where the sun of better things simply cannot get in.

To keep on with the analogy, a man or woman can immerse himself in work or daily routine, until the feeling of responsibility engendered, slowly but surely edges everything else out of life. When this happens, one thing is certain. Deterioration sets in. Efficiency like a ladder without rungs, it collapses of its own accord. Efficiency is merely an abstract word made up of many things—mental content, spiritual peace, physical well-being and nerve fibers, strung to a happy tune.

Looking Forward

All this sounds a bit ponderous, but it leads straight to one thing. Is the woman who lives her life in the house, doing her routine work from sun to moon, going to be a more efficient mother by limiting herself to four walls? That is, will she continue long to be so?

"Never to get out, or to exercise her vision? To keep her mental optician's nerves from turning in on themselves and eventually from shriveling? Is this the way to perfect herself in the business of motherhood?"

There are many young matrons, it is true, who must stay at home when the children are little. This period of sacrifice must be faced, endured patiently and accepted as a matter of course.

But these years pass with astounding swiftness, as one looks back, and then what?

By the time she finds herself at least partially free, very likely habit has claimed her. She feels that she can't get out. The obsession rules. Not only that, but her feeling of house-responsibility has become so acute that she feels guilty in taking a little time off and mingling with the world. She ceases to miss friends and to feel the need of contact. She has to "force" herself out into the open. It is just too hard. She becomes a recluse, and few recluses ever saved their sweet dispositions.

For outlet and thrill, she often finds the yard and an hour's gossip with a neighbor all she wants. The bitter ness of so many backfence tongues is not to gossip but for real contact with other minds. Man is made this way—so is woman. Both need kindly human contacts. Both need outlet. To take a walk frees all sorts of bottled-up spirits. It spills bitterness and loneliness. Yes, efficiency needs its props.

Any mother will be a better mother, whether she lives in two rooms or twenty, if she treats herself as a free being, occasionally and not as a self-made prisoner. Otherwise she may become "blind" to the beauty of life forever.

Married Flirts

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSEY MORRILL and TOM WEAVER are married on the same day as LILA HOTALING and HERBERT BLISS, but Lila's wedding is a society event while Gypsy's is very simple.

While Lila lives in luxury, Gypsy has to struggle to keep expenses within Tom's income. She keeps her job teaching until she learns she is to have a baby.

After DAVID'S birth she is extremely busy, caring for him and for her home.

Tom is frequently away in the evening and Gypsy suffers in the loneliness of her own home.

Lila confesses to Gypsy that she is tired of her life. She wants to go to the city and work. Lila persuades Gypsy to call Mark and give him a message. Tom overhears and misunderstands. He and Gypsy quarrel but are reconciled.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIX

It would be fun, Gypsy said to herself on the Tuesday following their reconciliation, to go down and surprise Tom at lunchtime. Somehow she never seemed to have time or spirit for those small honeymoon gayeties any more. She dressed in her best—the new gray suit, the postage stamp hat perched on her shining crop of curls. The spring wind blew clear and papers in the streets. The sun sent slanting bright shafts of sunlight into the gray canyons. It was a perfect day for an adventure.

She went up in the bronze elevator, smiling secretly at her own daring. The girl at the information desk was new and did not recognize her. She didn't give her name. Was Mr. Weaver in? The girl, who had the head and shoulders of a wax mannequin, spoke softly into a telephone and informed her that Mr. Weaver was just on his way out to lunch. What name?

"I'll wait here," Gypsy sat in the deep divan which swallowed up her smallness. In the dim light her gray costume was scarcely noticeable against the taupe background. Presently she heard Tom's step and almost started to her feet. But as he saw her he was alone. A tall, slender girl was with him. He had his arm and was speaking to her earnestly. They seemed utterly absorbed. They did not see her as they stood waiting for the down elevator.

Gypsy's heart felt as though an icy hand were squeezing it. She sat perfectly still as the elevator door clanged open and shut and Tom's laugh rang out as the car shot downward. The information clerk glanced up curiously as she rose to go.

"Why, Mr. Weaver left just now. Didn't you see him?"

"No — I — I," she stammered. "I'll be back later."

"Anything I can do?" The wax mannequin was helpful.

Gypsy's eyes wandered past her. Anything she could do? There was nothing anyone could do for her today. She had trusted him so completely, so utterly; and yet she must believe the evidence of her eyes. How absorbed he had been! She had been right — she had been right all the time!

She walked aimlessly down Broadway. Past Trinity churchyard with doves wheeling in the sunshine, past block after block of stone facades and plate glass and table d'hôte restaurants and haberdasheries.

A hooded subway entrance at Park Place reminded her that she must be home before it was time for Elsa to leave. She ran down the stairs and clicked past the turnstile, paying her fare. There was the baby to be thought of. If all else failed, it would crumbled to dust around her there was always David, small and pink and trusting and fond. She never knew later, now she got through the dreadful day, her throat would be dry, her heart would beat thickly and painfully when she thought of her husband's homecoming. What would she say to him? How begin?

Elsa put on her gray coat and big, soft, shapless hat and went away. Gypsy bundled the baby up and carried him down to the perambulator garage in the basement of the building and trundled him out into the sunning street.

When she let herself into the apartment at 5 o'clock the telephone was ringing shrilly. She laid David carefully down upon the bed—he was peacefully asleep—and hurried to answer it.

Tom's voice said, "Look, dear, is it Elsa's night in?"

"No, Why?" She thought, so we're talking commonplaces while he's deceiving me and my heart's breaking.

"Oh, good gosh, I asked Gipsy to dinner before I thought, I'm sorry, darling. What shall I do now?"

"You mean Hunt?"

"Yes. Met him outside the Central (flavor on hour ago and it seemed a good idea at the time. I've been trying to get you..."

This was reprieve, Gypsy thought, both for him and for her. She steeled her voice. "Oh, Hunt can take pot luck," she told him. "Let him come along."

"That's a good girl. That's a darling."

Gypsy put the phone down with unnecessary vigor. So she was a good girl and a darling, was she? Well, she'd show him!

It was one of David's good nights and that was a bit of luck. Gypsy was permitted to serve dinner without a single interruption.

"I don't need any help," she had told Tom with cool finality when he followed her into the kitchen.

"Listen, darling, don't be mad. Honestly, I'm terribly sorry," Tom was frankly puzzled. She had been her old, laughing, delightful self these past few days. Now she had disappeared into her shell again; was cool, distant, removed from him.

"It's quite all right," Her politeness was the variety reserved for the perfect stranger.

She had the table set with her prettiest lace and linen cloth, her best china. Her red dress was demurely out, leaving her rounded arms and throat bare. She had never looked prettier. There was an apologetic flush on her cheeks and her eyes burned bright.

"Sweetheart," But she eluded Tom's arms.

"I'm busy," she said aloofly. "I'm busy," she said aloofly. "I'm busy," she said aloofly. "I'm busy," she said aloofly.

"Why do you see it the baby's all right? I thought I heard him stirring."

"O. K." Tom wore a faintly puzzled look. Gypsy had never been in this particular mood before.

The little dinner was a complete success so far as the guest was concerned, at least. The soup was a caudal green turtle virelty with sherry. Gypsy had bought it months before in a moment of unwonted extravagance and had been reserving it ever since for a special occasion.

It lent a touch of elegance to the meal, a simple affair of breaded pork chops and sweet potatoes and string beans.

Tom, who knew how his wife had been treasuring the green turtle soup, lifted his brows in mild surprise as that course ap

Reynolds' Ex-Wife Suing for Divorce

Another Tragic Chapter for Libby Holman's Predecessor

CONCORD, N. C. — Anne Cannon Reynolds Smith and her second husband, Frank Brandon Smith Jr., are estranged. It was reported Sunday.

John F. Cannon, Anne's second husband, had the pert, bobbed daughter, partners in tragedy ever since Anne's strange 2 a. m. marriage to the late tobacco heir, Smith Reynolds, in 1929, were reported bound for Hot Springs, Ark., to get a 90-day decree from the young hardware clerk Anne married 20 months ago.

Frank Smith and Anne Cannon had been sweethearts long before the winter week-end in November, 1929, when Reynolds, then 18, came from Winston Salem to the Cannon mansion in Concord for a visit.

It was at this time that Cannon, his daughter and Reynolds drove across the line into York, S. C., where the sudden wedding was performed.

Nine months later, on August 29, 1930, Anne became a mother. Even before then she and her young husband had separated, "but only temporarily."

Four months after the birth of her daughter, on the evening of December 3, Anne accompanied Tom, Guy Coltrane, 27, a son of a millionaire Concord banker, to a party at the home of Dr. E. A. Misenheimer. After a gay evening they left together.

Coltrane's body was found the next morning beneath a hedge bordering the garden. Joe Cannon sprang to his daughter's defense. A coroner's jury finally brought in a verdict of death by exposure.

On November 23, 1931, Cannon appeared before a judge in Reno to obtain his daughter's divorce. Anne, who had been flown to Reno by Reynolds himself and had established quarters at the Commodore Vanderbilt's ranch, was "too ill to appear."

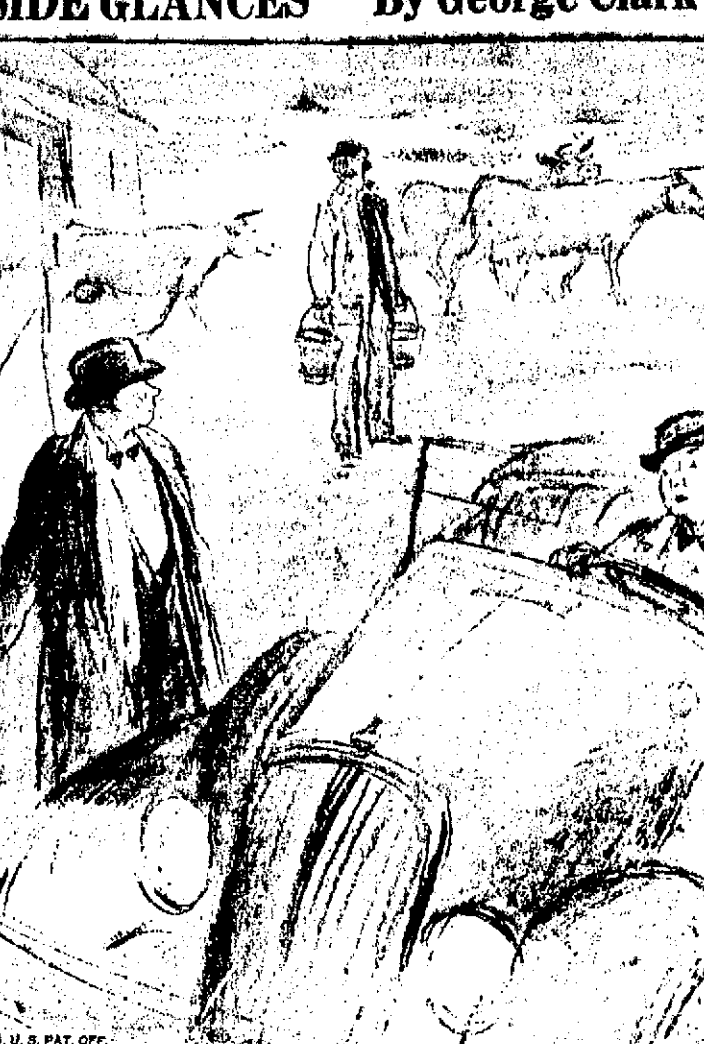

Back in Concord again a divorcee, Anne took up her childhood romance with Frank Smith. On May 4, 1932, he left the counter of his father's hardware store long enough to go through a marriage ceremony at the summer home of her parents in Blowing Rock, N. C.

But the past has not blotted so easily. Smith Reynolds was slain. His torch singing bride, Libby Holman, whom he married a few months after the divorce, was accused of his murder and acquitted; the strange marriage to Anne Cannon again became a matter of gossip.

With little Anne, second, now three and a half years old, Anne lived on at the Charlotte, (N. C.) home of her husband until a week ago. Then she brought baby Anne, who already has a $500,000 trust fund and may inherit half of her father's $20,000,000 estate, back to the Cannon home here.

Her mother is caring for the tiny heiress while Anne and her father go deer-hunting again. If the suit is filed in Hot Springs, a final decree can be granted in 90 days. Silent as always, the father refused to reveal the grounds or to say whether Smith would contest the action.

Famed Swede and Mamoulian Have Hollywood Stirred Up Again

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Greta Garbo and her director, Rouben Mamoulian, are lost again. And the betting here is that when they are found they will be together this time.

Garbo and Mamoulian, once a high-brow matinee and composer in New York's best musical circles, are believed to be on the same transcontinental train headed for a New York vacation. Only a few weeks ago after they were "lost" together on a desert motoring vacation, Greta and the slight, nervous Mamoulian were reported married.

"We are not married and there are no plans at all for a marriage," Mamoulian said when they returned here and Garbo went into her customary seclusion.

Mamoulian left here for New York at 8 p. m. His going caused no excitement until the report spread that Greta, in one of her manifold disguises, boarded the train with him.

Whenever anybody mentioned romance and Mamoulian to her recent-

Labor Insurance Law Is Planned

Wagner Proposes Levy by U. S. Against Company Payrolls

WASHINGTON.—An unemployment insurance bill designed to fit the American system of government was to be introduced in the Senate Monday by Senator Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, New York, long congress most active advocate of federal legislation to stabilize employment and prepare for slack times, and now in addition to his senatorship chairman of the NRA's National Labor Board.

While not an administrative measure, the bill will start its legislative course under the friendly eye of President Roosevelt. During conference concerning the bill, the president had expressed a sincere interest in its purposes and its terms. Senator Wagner said Sunday. A companion measure will be introduced in the house by Representative David J. Lewis, Democrat, Maryland.

In a strict sense, the bill does not provide for unemployment insurance, but through use of the federal taxing power in intended to encourage the 48 states to set up unemployment systems of their own. A new federal tax is to be levied upon the pay rolls of all employers, but in states where an unemployment insurance law meeting certain minimum requirements is in effect, employers will be allowed to deduct from their pay roll tax all funds paid out under their state law. Exemptions eliminate federal tax for farmers, employees of domestic service, and hospitals. As an added incentive for employers to stabilize the work level, further offsets against the federal tax would be allowed whenever an employers' success wins him a decrease in his contributions under state law.

Two stanzas of "America," practically unknown to Americans who have sung the song with patriotic fervor since the birth of the nation, have been uncovered by the office of Education in the Interior Department. They were written by the author of "America," Samuel Francis Smith, some time after the original verses familiar to every American school boy or girl were penned and are as follows:

Our glorious land to-day,
"Neath Education's sway,
Soars upward still,
Its bulks of learning fair,
Whose Bounties all may share,
Behold them everywhere,

Income Tax In a Nutshell

WHO? Single persons who had net income of $1,000 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more, and married couples who had net income of $2,500 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more must file returns.

No. 8 Exemptions Allowed Couples Married During Taxable Year

Taxpayers should note that under the Revenue Act of 1932 the credit for dependents as well as the personal exemption is required to be prorated where a change of status occurs during the taxable year. A fractional part of a month is to be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it is considered a month.

For example, a single man and single woman who were married in July 20, 1933, and were living together on the last day of the taxable year, may file a joint return and would be entitled to a personal exemption of $2,208.34, which is seven-twelfths of $1,000 for the husband and one-twelfth of $1,000 for the wife.

If during the year 1933 the husband or the wife had the status of the head of a family prior to their marriage he or she would be entitled to his or her pro rata share of the personal exemption of $2,500 allowed the head of a family for the period prior to their marriage instead of merely that allowed a single person. However, for the period of their marriage any exemption to which either might be entitled as the head of a family would be merged in the joint personal exemption for that period. The joint personal exemption allowable in the case of a couple who were married and living together during the entire year may not exceed $2,500.

If a child under 18 years of age and dependent on the parent for support reaches the age of 18 years during the taxable year, the credit of $400 for a dependent is required to be prorated in the same manner as the personal exemption. For example, should the child's eighteenth birthday fall on June 30, the parent would be entitled to claim $200 credit for the dependent child—that is, one half of $400. The same rule applies to other dependents where a change of status occurs during the taxable year.

Both testified he returned violently ill and attempted to treat himself, but was unable to eat anything for the five days before he consented to be removed to a hospital. Both said he "was sick, not drunk," and that he was not in the habit of drinking. His divorced wife and baby daughter were living in another section of Greenwood at the time.

thence on U. S. 70 to Little Rock or Hot Springs.

By turning south at Little Rock on U. S. 65 to Natchez and thence using U. S. 61 to New Orleans the distance is 1,186 miles, including only 50 miles of gravel. A visit to the popular resort city of Hot Springs increases the mileage to 1,230.

The shortest route between Chicago and New Orleans is 988 miles, following U. S. 51 through Memphis and Jackson, Miss., but this includes 255 miles of gravel in Mississippi, which is rough and dusty in dry weather and slippery in wet.

Tennessee has aroused the ire of the motoring public with its eight-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline and its requirement that a truck from another state making a single visit into Tennessee must pay a full year's license fee. Illinois highway police are watching southern Illinois roads for Tennessee trucks preparatory to a reprisal should Tennessee continue to arrest Illinois carriers. The administration is seeking a reciprocal agreement with the Tennessee administration.

MacCracken, who was in charge of the Aeronautics Division of the Commerce Department, watched from the galleries as the senate demanded that his clients be brought before it. He was arrested Friday night to appear before the senate. After he had refused to turn his clients' correspondence over to the committee, he allowed some of the papers, described as personal, to be taken from his files.

The three others involved are L. H. Bellin, vice president of Northwest Airways; Harris M. Hanchue, president of Western Air Express, and Gilbert L. Givvin, Washington representative of the latter.

Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, chairman of the investigating committee, said evidence presented the committee showed that air mail operators met in 1930 in a room next to the office of then Postmaster General Brown and discussed the "dividing up" of air mail routes and contracts. Contracts let by Brown following the conference, Black said, were awarded "collusively and fraudulently, and stand upon a rotten foundation."

Infected Milk May Cause Tuberculosis of Limbs, a Malady Difficult to Cure

Watch your children, especially when they are between 3 and 5 years, for any sign of infection of their joints. And, while you're watching them, be on guard against use of infected milk, because that's the medium through which the youngsters are most likely to become infected with the disease called tuberculosis of the joints.

In fact, tuberculosis of the bones and joints more frequently follows infection through milk than does tuberculosis of the lungs.

This type of tuberculosis is one of the most difficult diseases for medical treatment, largely because of the way in which it is associated with tuberculosis elsewhere in body.

If your doctor could treat this disease alone, and ignore the rest of the body, he could do much more than is possible today, to cure the stricken child.
